Visit the museums at your own pace for unguided tours. Admittance is by donation. Many exhibits are signed for your convenience. Hosts are available at the Schoolhouse in summer and welcome your thoughts and questions.

The museums are maintained and operated by the Molson Museum Association. Donations are appreciated and are very important to maintain the buildings and exhibits.

Maintenance is performed by volunteer community members, but occasionally it is necessary to hire contractors. The exhibits are maintained, preserved and presented by volunteer members of the Museum Association.

The Molson Church was added to the Museum complex in 2004. Volunteers restored the Church back to its early 1900's appearance.

Old Molson Ghost Town Museum

The Old Molson Museum consists of a collection of pioneer buildings, farm machinery, historic mining equipment and numerous other relics. Old Molson Museum was created by Molson area pioneer, Harry Sherling in 1960.

Old Molson was started by George Meacham, a promoter and John W. Molson, an investor. Originally, the boom town served as a trading center and place to live for gold seekers. The mining boom fell off late 1890's and the population plunged until the area opened to homesteaders in 1900.

A new boom occurred in the early 1900's when the Great Northern Railroad came directly through town.

Molson Schoolhouse* Museum

The 3-story brick schoolhouse was built in 1914. Now a museum, it includes a restored classroom, the original school library, a unique display of antique hand tools, horse related equipment, pioneer post office fixtures, household artifacts, historic photographs and more.

The school closed in 1969. Molson and Chesaw area children were transferred to the Oroville schools. The Molson Schoolhouse was purchased from the Oroville School District in the 1970's by the Molson Grange. An aggressive group of volunteers collected and organized displays for the museum to open in 1982.

The tea room provides refreshments and souvenirs in a delightful old fashioned setting. The ice cream table, old school chairs and friendly volunteers invite a visit from all guests. Wheelchair accessible bathrooms are available.
